HOUSE OF COMMONS, JUNE 20.

Mr DUNDAS laid before the House copies of letter from the Commanders of the following regiments of militia, offering their fervices in Ireland :- From Lord C. Spencer of the Oxford; Major Edwards of the Caernarvon; the Hon. Arthur Paget of the Anglesca; the Marquis of Buckingham of the Old Bucks or King's own regiment of militis; Colohel Bradyl of the Denbighthire; the Duke of Rutland of the Leicestershire; Major Hawkins of the Warwickshire; and Col. Ravenscroft of the Caermarthen.

The order of the day was then read for the fecond reading of the bill for enabling his Majesty to fend, for a time to be limited, a certain number of the militia regiments to Ireland. Colonel SLOANE spoke in favour of the bill.

General TARLETON entered into many calculations, from which he deduced, that the standing effective force was not more than 37,000 men, who had borne arms above a twelvemonth; from which feveral drains had been made, 1500 in the expedition to Oftend, which he centured as a chimerical project, and several drafts to Ireland. Under these circumstances he thought no more men should be suffered to leave this country.

Mr Secretary Dundas faid, the Hon. Gentleman had been bred a foldier, and he dared fay was a fuldier But he had heard the opinion of many military gen-tlemen, of at least equal celebrity with the Hon Gen-tleman, who held very different opinions. With respect to the expedition to Oftend, it was one of which he was not ashamed; it was one, on the contrary, for which he might take credit. The success of this expedicion prevented the enemy from bringing their vessels round to the point of rendezvous without being exposed to the activity and vigilance of our navy. That expedition had been strongly urged by Sir Charles Grey; and the authority of that great and respectable officer, was sufficient to keep him in countenance for any share he might have had in advising that measure. He conceived the Honourable Gentleman had done wrong to lay out of his consideration the whole of the volunteer associations. The Hon. General had himself served in a country where the army was at first formed of no other men, and above 40,000 of them had been in arms

Mr JEKYLL defended the flatements of the Hon. General as correct, and displaying great military know-ledge. With respect to the expedition to Ostend, look at the fruits of it. He had feen a letter from Bruges, which flated that the explosition had not injured one of the fluices, and that there was sufficient water in the Canal of Oftend to navigate vessels. Now, on the oher hand, what was the refult? The lofs of 1500 brave men languishing in French prisons.—With respect to the present measure, he should feel it his duty to oppose it in every stage. Though much surprise had been expressed by some of his friends, he consessed that he expressed by some of his friends, he consessed that he felt none, for he had seen within five years many unconstitutional proceedings. He had seen the Habeas Corpus suspended almost by acclamation. He had seen a blow given to the security of property, by the claim made upon it of a tenth; and, within a week, he had seen an attempt to stifle the liberty of the press. The bill abounded with epithets, which, if he sactioned the bill, he was also obliged to fanction. It stated, that there was a wicked and unnatural rebellion in Ireland; and this was the first way that he knew it as a Member of Parliament; it was the only way that it was communicated to the House. How did he know that it was not a refiftance which the people of Ireland had a right to maintain.—[Here was a call of order.]—The Hon.
Member faid, he would not be deterred from fpeaking -[Here was a call of order.]-The Hon. his fentiments, he would not give way to a faife delicacy, and again repeated his proposition.

Mr Secretary Dundas moved to enforce the standing order, and all strangers were immediately excluded. After a debate of some time, the House divided.

For the second reading 43—Against it 11.
We understood that the bill was afterwards committed, read a third time, and passed. JUNE 21. The amendments of the Lords in the tanners bill were, on motion, ordered to be taken into confideration this day three months.

The convoy protection was read a third time, and ordered to the Lords.

Mr JEKYLL, alluding to what he faid yesterday relative to the failure of the expedition to Oftend, stated, that he had this morning been favoured with a visit from Captain Popham, whom no man would mention with out respect, who, though the service he was engaged in did not permit his being on shore, had offered such evidence to him that, in point of fact, the works of the sluices were destroyed, and the navigation stopped, except where it was affected by the flux of the sea; that the masonry was blown up to fuch an extent placed in a state of repair for twelve months. He felt it his duty to state this, that nothing might go abroad that could affect the minds of the gallant officers and men who were engaged in that service, and particularly General Coote, who was now languishing under a se-At the time he made the statement, he declared he believed it to be correct. He was now, however, convinced that the works were demolished.

Mr DUNDAS faid, it was impossible, after the candid and liberal manner in which the Hon, and learned Gentleman had explained himfelf, that he had the most difant intention to mifrepresent the fact.

The House resolved itself into a Committee to hear Counsel in support of the distillers petition against the bill now in Parliament for continuing the additional duties on stills in Scotland. Mr Adams was heard at great length on the subject, after which the other orders of the day were disposed of, and the House adjourned.

JUNE 22.

An idle report has been circulated, that Mr Pitt is to go to the Upper House, with the title of Earl of Cambridge.

The title of Cambridge has been er byed by feveral branches of the Blood Royal. Prince Henry, youngest the above. We must, however, soon kno for Charles I. was created Earl of Cambridge and dispatches have been received from India.

Duke of Gloucester. Three infant sons of the Duke of York, afterwards James II. were successively created Dukes of Cambridge, but died in their infancy.

George I. when Electoral Prince of Hanover, the reign of Queen Anne, was created Marquis and Duke of Cambridge. His fon, afterwards George II, on his father's accession to the Crown, was created Marquis and Duke by the same title, and Prince of Wales.—From which it seems, that this illustrious title is now merged in the Crown, and therefore, it is pre-funed, it cannot be revived but in one of the Blood

The Marquis of Buckingham left town on Tuefday for Ireland, and yesterday morning his regiment was to leave Chelmsford barracks. The men are to go all the way by water, on the canals, and are to embark at Li-

The Marquis of Hertford left town yesterday morning, to join his regiment of the Warwickshire militia, having offered their services to march for Ireland.

The idea of fending the militia regiments out of the country originated in a fingular circumstance, which we have great pleafure in communicating to the public.— A private in the Marquis of Hertford's regiment of militia, who was beloved by all his corps, was lately advi-fed that his father had been barbaroufly murdered by the rebels in Ireland for his known attachment to the Government. Two or three days after he was made acquainted with the circumstance, the parade being over, the Major of the regiment found himself surrounded by his men. Defiring an explanation of their wishes, they told him, that it was the request of the regiment that he would write to the Marquis of Hertford praying him to offer their fervices to his Majesty, to go and fight the rebels in Ireland, and revenge the blood of their murdered fellow-fubjects. The offer was made by the Marquis, and accepted with the thanks due to fo loyal a conduct. The fact being known among other regiments of militia, they have imitated this generous example and there have been actually more offers made than the fervice requires, or can be spared out of the country.
We understand, from very good authority, that it

Marquis Cornwallis's intention, on his arrival in Ireland to change the whole system of military affairs in that country, which is found to be not fo efficient as it may be made to be. Instead of having small detachments which are spread over the country, and in many places fearce fufficient for felf-defence, much less to make an attack, it is his Lordship's intention to establish three or four grand armies, to each of which will be attached moving columns, which will be feat from place to place as the fervice may require; and in case of necessity, where the rebels are very strong, it will be affisted by the whole army in that particular division. This will prevent small detachments from being cut off; and will, at the same time, over-awe the rebels. The reinforcements already arrived, or on their way to Ireland, will enable Lord Cornwallis to carry his arrangement into the fullest effect. The Noble Marquis will not be stationary in Dublin, but will go wherever the danger appears most urgent.

We do not believe that any opinion is yet taken in refpect to what may be the future fullem in governing Ireland. Marquis Cornwallis's first object is to quel the rebellion; and that being done, which we trust will be soon, it will remain for future consideration, whether there shall not be a change of measures.

It is now generally believed, that Earl St Vincent himself has gone into the Mediterranean after the Toulon squadron, with fourteen ships of the line. Admira Parker is left in the comand of the blockade of Cadiz. with 18 ships of the line, having under him Sir Hora-tio Nelson and Sir James Orde. Lord St Vincent is supposed to have taken with him Sir Roger Curtis and Rear-Admiral Frederick .- Should this arrangement really have taken place, we may expect the most fatif-factory account of Buonaparte and his expedition to Egypt.

At the conclusion of the review of the 2d regiment of the life-guards, some days since, two privates went through the fword exercise, before the which Lord Catheart enquired if his Majesty would be pleafed to see two of the youngest officers display their science in the use of the sword; he affented, and was much gratified by their execution. His Majesty then turned to the General, and enquired who were the oldest officers present, and on being answered that Lord C and Major Barton were, he defired to see them perform, laughing heartily, and telling his Lordthip that he had brought the exhibition on himfelf .they accordingly turned out, to the great amusement of those present; and though the Major's system fa-voured a little of the old school, they acquitted themfelves very respectably.

Mesirs Carran, Ponsonby, M'Nally, Plunket, and Bush, have been assigned as counsel for all the prisoners charged with high treason in Ireland. The trials are to come on the 25th inft.

A woman dreffed in deep mourning, waited yesterday afternoon at the garden gate, St James's, in an-xious expectation, when their Majesties stepped into their carriage, of presenting a petition, but being pre-vented by the officers on guard from approaching near enough, the retired to fome distance from the place, and, as the coach passed, had the resolution to throw it in at the window; it falling into the Princess Elizabeth's lap, her Royal Highness gave it to the Queen .- The poor woman appeared quite overjoyed, to think she had been fo fuccefsful. From the narrative she told, it appeared, that she had lost her husband, who had been rant officer on board the Queen, in the West Indies; one of her fons, a Lieutenant, was murdered by the crew of the Hermoine; and another had fell in action on board the Leviathan; that she was lest intirely destitute, and had no other means of gaining relief than imploring the goodness of their Majesties to alleviate her fufferings by deigning to notice the prayer of her

By late advices from India it appears, that the young Nabob of Oude has been depoted by the authority of our Government, and his uncle placed on the Musnud. Sir John Shore being diffatisfied with the conduct of the Nabob, fummoned him and his principal officers to a council. The Nabob declined attending, and his ministers declaring in favour of his uncle, he was fent for and invested with regal authority. The young Nabob is under confinement. This change is faid to have been attended with confiderable cessions and advantages to the East India Company.

Confiderable doubts are entertained of the truth of the above. We mult, however, foon know the fact, as

The negociations at Rastadt are still at a stand, but some have been commenced at Selz, which are expected to be conducted with greater activity.— The Toulon fleet is reported in the Italian letters to have failed for the island of Malta-a report that seems to be in fome degree probable, from the circumstance of the French having seized upon the effects and property belonging to the Knights of that Order. In the litting of the Helvetic Legislative Body at Arau, the Directory communicated to them, that the House of Vanneck, of London, had received permission from the English Government to pay the bills of exchange which the ancient government had drawn, and which had been at first protested. NEW DUTIES ON VELLUM, PARCHMENT, &c. As numbers of the first respectability are much inteefted in the tendency of the following refolutions, we think it proper to give them as they have passed in the House of Commons: " Refolved, that the duties now charged on vellum,

MR TIERNEY.

A meeting of the Electors of Southwark was held yesterday, at the Grove, Camberwell, to celebrate the anniversary of Mr Tierney's election.

After dinner most of the Whig Club toasts were drunk. On Mr Tierney's health being given, he addreffed the company in an appropriate speech, in which, vindicating his political conduct in Parliament, he said:

"Much odium had been attempted to be thrown upon him and his friends." upon him and his friends, in confequence of the conduct they had held respecting the affairs of Ireland. It had been faid that they gave countenance to the rebellion. He declared that he never would give countenance to any transactions that he was convinced deserved that name.-He was the decided enemy to rebellion, and still more so if it was made in concert with France; for he thought the conduct of the present rulers of France was fuch as to deferve the execration of all mankind. The disturbances in Ireland had been ascribed to the machinations of wicked men, who propagated French or Jacobin principles, but he was convinced these principles would never have made any progress under a good Government.—The miseries which Ireland experienced, ought to be a warning to those who fow the feeds of the same evils in this country. The measures taken here were calculated to produce the very fame effect which had refulted from fimilar measures in Ireland. He should think meanly of the spirit of Englishmen, if they did not follow the example that was fet them by the loyal Irish.—Men who were loyal in every sense of the word .- Loyal to that limited Monarchy which the Constitution acknowledged, and loyal to the best in-terests of their country and mankind."

Thus far Mr Tierney, according to the report of his peech, given in a morning paper avowedly in his interest.-What is to be understood by his definition of Irish loyalty, we leave our readers to guess.

Lord William Ruffel, Sir Francis Burdett, and General Tarleton, being present, their healths were drank; as were those of the Duke of Bedford, Mr Fox, and feveral other gentlemen abient.

PROTEST AGAINST THE LAND TAX BILL. The following protest has been entered upon the Journals of the House of Lords, against the bill passed on Tuesday the 12th inst. intituled, " An Act for making perpetual, subject to redemption and purchase in the manner therein stated, the several sums of money now charged in Great Britain as a land-tax for one year, from the 25th day of March 1798."

of the Land Tax being voted annually; a principle, we conceive,

That tax being from its very nature unequal, and liable to fluctuation, from a variety of causes, cannot furnish any reasonable ground on which to establish one permanent uniform plan of sinated operation.

3dly, Because the proposed plan of sale or redemption, with a view to the general prosperity of the country, appears totally fallacious, as the mode in which its operation is to take effect cannot but be precarious; and, should the event proposed answer the warmest expectations of the most zealous advocates for the measures of the country, analy the landed, to the more precarious and fluctuating interest of the country, namely the landed, to the more precarious and fluctuating interest of the monied property of the kingdom.

GENEVA, May 31. The French resident here, Citizen Desportes, accompanied by two justices of the peace, and two civil officers, broke open the hall in which the famous club called the Cercle de la Grille affembled. In it they found, among other things, the precious trinkets of those monsters of terrorism—five death's heads, two of which were fixed on the pikes of their standards, and the two skulls of La Rochamont and De Bardy, which were used for drinking-cups in the orgies of the cannibals. It is suspected that the heads are these of citizens that at the time of our cruel revolutionary ties bunal. Desportes, it is faid, will prosecute the of this atrocious crew. The heads and skulls were buted with proper ceremonies, and the banners and other attributes of this infamous fociety hung on the gallors

MUNICH, June 5.

The Nuncio of the Holy See refident here, has received, we learn, the following intelligence:

The French General St Cyr, who commands Rome, wrote some time fince to the Grand Duke of Tufcany, that as the troubles which had broken out in Italy, and principally at Perugia, had been occasioned by the Pope, he prayed his Highness to take such meafures as should prevent his Holiness from making any longer stay within his territories. The Grand Duke having declined, it is faid, to take any steps in confequence of this demand, the General fent him a fecond letter, the contents of which refembled a declaration of war. Soon after, a detachment of French troops entered Siena, seized the person of the Sovereign Por tiff, as well as feveral Cardinals, and conveyed them to Leghorn, where a flotilla was ready to receive them, which immediately fet fail for Cagliari, in Sardinia.

REVOLUTION IN HOLLAND. SUN OFFICE-FRIDAY ONE O'CLOCK, P. M.

We stop the press to announce, that a Dutch paper of the 19th inst. brought by a person who arrived this morning from Holland, states that a complete revolu-tion had taken place at the Hague the day before, that is, on the 18th inft.

General Dandaels, who was difmiffed from his command at the former revolution, having the army with him, had arrested the Directory, and put other persons in their room. The French Ambassador, who had attempted to interfere, was also put under arrest.

The fame account adds, that many of the new per-fons appointed are in the interest of the Stadtholder.

The above paper also mentions a proclamation to have been issued by Lieutenant General Dandaels, which states that in the last elections the friends of the Stadtholder, who are amongst the most respectable perfons of the State, were excluded, and on this account annuls the elections.

The Provisional Directory were Pymen, Gojet, &c. La Croise the French Minister, was under arrest, and some of the former Government had fled to Paris.

We hear that on Monday evening, two of the mail paches were intercepted on their way to this city, at Cloncurry, by a party of the rebel cavalry, the paileners and guard robbed of their fire arms, and two horistaken from each carriage, after which they were aftered to proceed without further moleftation. At Cloncurry, feveral horfes, to the amount of 26, were concurry, several norses, to the amount of 20, were also captured, and brought off to a rebel camp in that asignbourhood; whither they were also conducting two gentlemen who had been paffengers, but one of them making loud and rueful lamentation, they were liberated, and are fince arrived in Dublin. Some postchaises were stopped, and the passengers treated nearly in the same manner. There were several small parties of the insurgents, seemingly employed on the same predatory business.—The persons who stopped the coaches were well mounted and appointed, with helmets, &c. Parties or patroles of these insurgents were described on the hills near the road, all the way from Cloneurry to the hills near the road, all the way from Cloncurry to Kilcock .- Hib. Jour.

Yesterday evening, at five o'clock, the Most Noble the Marquis CORNWALLIS and fuite arrived from Enghad in the Loftus packet, under convey of the Europa man of war. Marquis Connewwallis was accompanied by General Ross, Captain Parish, and another military Geneteman. His Lordship was dressed in full regimentals, and, notwithstanding the many campaigns and arduous ferrices in which he has been engaged in the western and eastern parts of the globe, exhibits a very healthful florid appearance.

We are concerned to state, that infurgency has broten out to a confiderable extent in the county Cork, within 12 miles of that city, near Bandon; a very fevere action has taken place, in which the infurgents fultained

Accounts are faid to have arrived in town this morning, flating, that the infurgents camp in the neighbour-hood of Rofs had been attacked by Gen. JOHNSTON'S 2rmy on Tuesday last, where the rebels sustained a very confiderable lofs, leaving behind their camp equipage, ammunition, &c.

By letters received yesterday from Rathdrum and Arklow, we learn that the great movement of the forces against the Wexford rebels has begun to take place. On Monday evening laft, according to these accounts Generals DUNDAS and LOFTUS from Tullow and Hackerstown, advanced towards Carnew. A large body of several thousand rebels were posted on the hill of Ballykilcavan, which lies near Carnew; a cannonade commenced on the part of the King's troops, and was answered by some pieces of cannon possessed by the rebels; the rebels, after some time began to fall back, but night intervening, our army could not make use of that advantage. At the dawn of Tuesday morning the attack was renewed, and in a short time the rebels retreated in confusion into the county of Wexford.

We have had no account of the lofs on the part of our troops, but the letters state the loss of the rebels to bave been very confiderable.

Of this action at Ballykilcaven no account has been received by Government late yesterday evening. Our Rathdrum letter gives it on the authority of a yeoman who had arrived there, and related it as a fact at which he had been present. Our Arklow correspondent recites it as believed throughout the country.

Ballykilcaven is about 40 miles from Dublin, 12 from Rathdrum, and 25 from Arklow.

On Tuesday morning General Needham moved forward from Arklow to Gorey, without any opposition from the rebels, who sted from his approach. A few straggling parties of their army were met and put to the sword. The General took possession of Gorey.

The rebels who engaged Gen. Dundas at Ballykil-cavan, are supposed to have been the party who were encamped at Little Limerick, near Gorey, and had been led from thence to Ballykileavan, in order to force their way out of the county of Wexford. In an action in the town of Profperous on Tuefday last, the party of rebels who had feized that town were utterly routed. The town is however destroyed. The bridges on the Barrow have been broken down to prevent the escape af the rebels to the westward. Mr B. HARVEY, fometime chieftain of the Wexford rebels, has been, it is faid, deposed from his command, and a Roman Catholic Priest named ROCHE appointed in his stead. One of the first exploits of General ROCHE was confining 120 Protestants of the neighbourhood of Old Ross in the barn of Mr King of Skolloghboge, and then fetting the barn on fire and burning these unhappy persons (men, women and children) to death! A discovery has been made at Cork of an extensive plot entered into for an infurrection and massacre in that city—the discovery has happily been made in time, and the project is completely defeated. In the county of Clare, emissaries from Dublin who had laboured to produce disturbance there, have been given up to justice by the country people.

The Marquis Cornwallis is arrived, and expected to do wonders in fettling our business. No one how-ever can carry away a more amiable character than Lord CAMDEN, who has done every thing a fensible fo-lid man could with the strictest discipline but no cruelty. He is recalled at his own defire.

There are from 30 to 40,000 rebels in Wexford county—The Royal army now amounts to 16,000 men, and a decifive battle is hourly expected.

On the 18th and 19th inft. there had arrived at Waterford Admiral Thompson with the Guards; twentytwo transports with other troops-300 Hessian ristemen from Clonmel—the Nottingham fencibles from Guern-fey—the Glengary Highlan lers from Do.—and the 2d brigade light troops from Bandon, all of which had marched to New Ross under Gen. HUNTER.

BELFAST, June 22.

Wednesday last, the Rev. Wm. Baistow, Sovereign of this town, returned from Scotland, where he had been to fix his family.

On Saturday se'ennight the dwelling of a farmer a yeoman, within a mile of Saintsield, in the county of Down, was surrounded by a multitude of the infurgents; the house was bravely defended by the head of the family, who was a yeoman, 'till they set fire to the house, and burned to death every person in it, consisting of twelve. Their skeletons reduced almost to ashes, were a few days ago dug out and buried by the army.—This few days ago dug out and buried by the army .- This favage act of cruelty, was perpetrated on the morning of the day when the troops marched to chassise the rebels in that neighbourhood.

It is prefumed that the perfons thus cruelly murdered, were of both fexes, and partly children.

REV. THOMAS LEDLIE BIRCH.

The trial of this gentleman occupied the attention of General Court-Martial, at Lilburn, on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday last. "

Mr Direct was charged with rebellion and treason, n being prefent at and encouraging the rebels at Creevy-Rocks, on Sunday evening the 10th inflant; at Saint-field and Ballynahinch on Monday the 11th; and at Mr PRICE's Cattle on the Terrace at the Hill on Tuesday the 13th.

The evidence being closed, Mr Birch addressed the Court in a flort speech, nearly to the following effect:

Feeling deeply impressed with gratitude to the Court for the justice, honour, and candor with which they had treated him, he returned them his most hearty thanks. The difficulties he lay under in procuring exculpatory evidence in his present situation. exculpatory evidence in his present fituation, rendered his defence less complete than it otherwise would have been; but the evidence already adduced took away the been; but the evidence aircady addaced took away the credibility of what was fworn against him. He with pleasure threw his honour, his life, and all that could be dear to him, on this Court. He loved his King; he loved his country; he would ever pray for their prosperity.—He was thoroughly convinced he could neither be happy nor useful in his native land. Should he be permitted, he would willingly go where General GOLDIE or other authority, should be pleased to send him-to America, or any other country not at war with

The fentence of the Court Martial on Mr BIRCH has not reached us in an authentic manner.

Last Saturday, FLORENCE M'CARTHY, NICHOLAS BURKE, — DOYLE, and — FITZGERALD, all from Curriglass, were tried by a General Court Martial and convicted of tendering unlawful oaths, and other treasonable practices.—M'CARTHY, BURKE, and DOYLE were sentenced to be hanged this day at Tallow; FITZGERALD to receive 1000 lashes. They were taken off this morning, escorted by a party of the Glentworth Fencibles, to the place of execution.

This day, THOMAS PROSSOR, a callico printer, fen tenced by a General Court Martial to be transported for life, was fent on board the Convict ship at Cove, bound to Botany Bay. He was convicted of administering an oath to join the French.

[FROM OUR LONDON CORRESPONDENT.]

HOUSE OF COMMONS, Jane 22.

The report of the Committee on the Scotch Diffillery bill was received and agreed to. The bill was or dered to be read a third time to-morrow.

ROCK SALT. Mr Ross brought up a bill to allow rock falt to be refined at one place in Scotland.

Mr Wigner faid, he intended to oppose the bill, but he should allow it to be read a first time. On the question for reading the bill a second time

Col. Chumley moved that the bill be read a fecond time this day 3 months. Mr WIGLEY feconded the motion, but if fix or feven days could be allowed in order to give time to persons interested in opposing the bill to attend, he had no ob jection that the prefent motion should be waved. Col. FULLARTON spoke for the second reading of the bill as foon as possible.

Mr Rose faid a few words on the fame fide.

Col. CHUMLEY explained, The House divided on the motion for reading the bill this day 3 months.

Ayes 35, noes 24-Majority 11.*

After the division was over, and just as the strangers were re-admitted into the gallery-Mr BAKER rose and moved the standing order for * (Our Correspondent tays that owing to the circumstance which took place immediately on this division which caused some bussle, he cannot be positive as to the state of the above vote, but thinks he is correct.)

The SPEARER defired the strangers to withdraw. Mr Sneridan faid, if this standing order was to be enforced at all, he should infust upon its being enforced observed, that is required the Serjeant at Arms to take all strangers into custody who might be found in and about the House. The ordering them to withdraw was not executing the orders, and he insisted that the Serjeant at jeant at Arms would not do his duty if he did not take all the strangers who were in the gallery, or other parts of the House, into custody. According to the standing order they could not be set at liberty until a motion was made for that purpose; the best way, therefore, would be to keep them in custody until the debate was over, when there would be an opportunity for making

The SPEAKER observed, that whenever the violation The SPRAKER obleved, that whenever the violation of the standing order respecting strangers was noticed by a member, it had been the usual practice to order them to withdraw; and if they resulted, they were taken into custody. The House certainly might enforce the order to its fullest extent if they thought proper so to do; and as the strangers were now ordered to withdraw, it was for the House to consider whether the Serjeant at Arms did his duty in permitting them to go away without being taken into cullody.

Mr Sheridan faid, undoubtedly the Speaker had stated the question correctly as to the practice, but he contended he had a right to infift that the order should not be enforced partly, but that it should be carried into complete execution.

The Speaker replied, that the conduct he had a dopted upon the moving of the standing order, was that which had always been followed by his predecessors.—
The House would, therefore, he believed, consider that he had sufficiently done his duty in desiring strangers to withdraw. It was for the House to determine, whether the order should be strictly and literally enfor ced, or only partially executed, as had always been the practice. But perhaps the Hon. Gentleman might wave his motion. In that case no farther observations on the subject would be necessary.

Mr Bakks signified he had no intention to wave the motion—on the contrary he would move that the strangers who did not immediately withdraw should be taken into cultody.

The Speaker-" Strangers must withdraw."

The strangers withdrew very reluctantly. Many feemed inclined to wait until they were taken into custody, but at last went our when they saw that the majority were gone.

Mr Fox just entered the House as the strangers were retiring.

The intelligence received from London to-day, is rendered particularly interesting, as it announces a counter-revolution having taken place at the Hague, on the 18th inst.—General DANDALLS, who was dismissed from the command of the army at the last revolution, is said to have effected this.—The DIRECTORY have been arrested, as also the French Minister LA CROIX.-

This intelligence was brought to London in a Dutch paper of the 19th. A short time will show how far it is founded in fact.

Since the period at which the French entered Hol-and a firing body of troops has been kept there—but fome months ago, when they made fuch a shew of an immediate invasion of this country, a great number of these troops were marched into France, and encamped on the coast. The absence of these troops may have on the coatt. The abtence of these troops may have rendered the exertions of the opposite party in Holland less difficult, and more sure of success. The numerous requisitions imposed by the French on the people of Holland excited a strong spirit of resistance, which has hitherto been kept in check by the number of troops spread over the country; but these, it now appears, have joined General Dandalls against the Directory.

The intelligence from Ireland continues to be interesting. Various reports have been circulated respecting the rebels collected at Wexford. Yesterday it was currently reported here that an express had arrived from Glasgow with intelligence of an engagement between the King's troops and the rebels, in which the latter were routed, leaving on the field 10,000 fland of arms, great quantity of ammunition and provisions.

We have letters and newspapers to-day from Dublin, dated the 21st inst.—Extracts from these will be found in the foregoing columns .- By thefe it appears that the army has begun to move, and various skirmishes are mentioned. No authenticated account has however yet been published, nor are the particulars stated further than that the rebols have uniforly been defeated.

Our letters from Cork are dated the 18th inft. and state, that a body of rebels had shown themselves in that county, but no doubt was entertained that they would foon be brought under .- A fortunate discovery had been made of a number of persons in Cork, who meant to have aided the rebels.—These have been

Our letters from Belfast are dated the 22d inft. All was quiet in that district, and the Court Martials were proceeding in the trials of various rebels.

CLACKMANAN—June 23, 1798.
At a General Meeting of the whole Farmers of the county held here this day, in confequente of previous advertifements in the Edinburgh newspapers, having made choice of Mr Thomas Miller, farmer at loch, for their Press, They came unanimously to the following resolutions:

1. That they are much interested in any law that may be passed for the regulation of the Scotch Distillery.

11. That in particular, they are deeply interested in prevent; ing any tax from being imposed on unnished grain.

111. That as no tax is imposed upon memaliced grain in England, it cannot be imposed upon it in Scotland, without directly insiding the articles of he Tready of Union.

11. That a partition to both Houses of Parliament be presented against the bill, in to far as it is injurious to the interest of the farmers.

ment allembled, the humble Petition of the Persons subferibing, Farmers in the County of Clackmannan, **Sobrueth**.

That your petitioners in their rotation or course of crops, necessarily raise large quantities of barley, a great part of which being of an inferior species, and by the humidity and coldness of the climate, generally rendered unsit for malting, can be consumed only in the distillery, in an unmalted state.

That the distillery having, for a long period of time, associated to your petitioners an extensive market for their barley, particularly of the inferior forts, they are consequently much interested in any law which may be passed for the regulation of chat manusactute.

That the bill now depending in Parlament for regulating the Scotch distillery, contains various provisions injurious to the interests of the petitioners, particularly in so far as it imposes a stary equal to the mast duty on all grain used by the distillers in an unmalted state. And it must necessarily happen, that barley only of the small quality will in future be made use of by distillera, which will operate to the discouragement of agriculture in Scotland, as well as to the prejudice of the specificance.

That as no such duty is imposed on grain in England beforce it is manusactured, your petitioners conceive it to be absolutely and directly contrary to the words, as well as to the spring of the Treaty of Union; to impose it upon Scotland.

By stricle 7th of that treaty it is provided, "That all the "parts of the United kingdom be for ever, from and after the "Union, diable to the same excises upon all excisable liquors.

Article 18th provides, "That the laws concerning regulations of trade, cuitoms, and such excises, to which Scotland is by "wirture of this treaty to be liable, he the same in Scotland from and after the Union as in England, &c."

May it therefore please this Honourable House to allow your petitioners to be heard by themselves or counsel against opposition to the measure, and to send their applications to James Campbell, Elg. Solicitor, Loudon; for defraying the expence of which a fund is already provided.

VII. Having confidered the whole proceedings of the Committee fines the last General Meeting, they approve thereof, and refolve. That the thanks of the Meeting be given to them, for their very proper attention to this subject; and that they be requested to continue to watch the progress of the bill, and to correspond with Mr Campbell, their Solicitor, and all others concerned. VIII. That thefe Refolutions be published in the Scotch and English news-napers.

The Chairman having left the Chair, the thanks of the Meeting were unanimously voted to him, for his able and impartial conduct. Signed, THOMAS MILLER, P.
